George Morse was a pleasant social visitor in the Chaneyville neighborhood Sunday afternoon. He let his Ford go slow all the way for fear that his new derby hat, which is just a bit too small, would fall off.

COLBY WILL REMAIN WITH DEMOCRATS

Party of Wilson Represents Progressive Ideals

That the Democratic party is not a real progressive party and that any other is the gist of a letter which Thomas E. Meacham, Secretary of the National Democratic Party, received from Colby. The letter is in reply to one sent to Meacham in which he called attention to a published report that Secretary Colby might be expected to resign.

Secretary Colby was a Republican follower of Roosevelt and he left the progressive wing when it disintegrated. His letter follows:

"I thank you for your letter of the 26th, calling my attention to a report to the effect that I am contemplating resigning my present post and joining the Republican party. I have not seen the newspaper to which you refer, but I hasten to assure you that nothing could be further from my intention.

"I quite agree with you that there is nothing in the Republican party, its platform, its candidates or its record, to appeal to any man of progressive inclinations or convictions. On the other hand, the Democratic party, under the leadership of President Wilson, has become in the truest sense of the word a progressive party, and it has had for years, and will continue to have, my earnest and unqualified support.

CHARLES ELLIS MIDDLETON

The body of Charles Ellis Middleton, Jr., who died Sunday evening in the Western Maryland Hospital at Cumberland, was brought overland by Undertaker Fred C. Pate to his home on South Richard street Monday afternoon. The lad, who was thirteen years old, was the younger son of the late Charles E. and Mrs. Helen Brashear Middleton.

During the summer he was a cadet at the Bedford Springs Golf Course and about ten days ago is supposed to have suffered an injury to his back while swimming. A few days afterward he became very ill and Friday evening was taken to the hospital where his case was diagnosed as cerebrospinal meningitis, death resulting Sunday.

The funeral, which was private, was held from his home at four o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Rev. R. S. Caldwell conducting the services. Burial was in the Bedford cemetery.

Charles was a bright and attractive lad, one endowed with the faculty of making others happy, and an intense lover of nature. He would have entered the Freshmen class of the Bedford High School this fall. Surviving are his mother and a brother, John.

OVERSUPPLY OF LEATHER, TANNING PLANTS CLOSE

Kane, Pa. — Marked inactivity continues to exist in the tanning industry in this end of the state. Many of the plants are entirely shut down while a number have severely curtailed their operation. An oversupply of leather is given as the cause.

"There is no indication of an extensive resumption of tanning," one local tanner stated today. "On the other hand plants are shutting down and men are being laid off every day. The prices paid for hides have taken a decided slump and according to the tanners, shoes are due to a decrease in price in the near future.

LA FOLLETTE TO RUN FOR PRESIDENT AS LIBERAL PARTY MAN

Detroit — Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin will be the presidential candidate of the faction of the committee of 48 which refused to amalgamate with the Farmer-Labor party at the recent Chicago convention, according to Howard W. Williams, national vice chairman of the organization.

A national convention soon to be held Williams said today, would tender the nomination of the Liberal party to the senator and select a vice presidential candidate.

Senator La Follette's consent to become the candidate of the new party was given as the result of telegrams and letters from all parts of the country after the Farmer-Labor convention, Mr. Williams said.

Senator Harding's Axioms

We must bear the touch of constitutionalism to the menacing involvements of international justice and advancing aspiration, for the super-government and preserved inheritance of national freedom can only be reconciled with readjustment and world relation if the designated sentinels commit the moral forces of the covenant of conscience to the fraternalized conscience of the nations. Can you tell what he means?

REPUBLICANS REJECT HARDING

NOMINEE'S MAIL FILLED WITH EXPRESSIONS INTERFERE IN PRIMARY SCRAPS.

Dayton, O. — Receipt of letters from many Republicans as well as Democrats urging a strong position for the League of Nations was announced today by Gov. Cox, the Democratic presidential nominee, after a busy day going through his mail and completing Saturday's program for his notification.

More than half of his letters, both here and at the Columbus executive office, Gov. Cox said, discuss the league declarations of Senator Harding, his Republican opponent.

"Many are from Democrats," said Gov. Cox, "and state that they see a fine opening. Many others are from Republicans and it certainly looks as if the independent Republican vote, which has followed with great interest this whole league question, is thoroughly dissatisfied."

Neutral on State Rights.

Gov. Cox also announced a general policy of non-interference in Democratic primary fights. He gave out a statement declaring he would not take sides in the Texas Democratic primary and also explained that this was a uniform policy applicable to all states. The governor said he received many telegrams and letters urging him to aid the opposing Texas factions and that newspapers on both sides had been claiming his support.

The governor spent the week in his newspaper office working on correspondence and made a personal visit to the Montgomery county fair grounds where he will speak next Saturday.

The program calls for introduction by Chairman McMahon of the Rev. W. A. Hale of the Reformed church of this city to deliver the invocation. The notification address of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, chairman of the San Francisco convention will follow and Gov. Cox will then deliver his acceptance address.

Visiting delegations will form in the city, march at 1 o'clock to the fair grounds, about a mile and be reviewed by Gov. Cox. From the speakers' stand while marching up the race track to seats in the amphitheatre. The "Cox band" will head the parade and also be given a place close to the speakers' stand to play "Ohio" the San Francisco battle song, upon conclusion of Gov. Cox's address. It is expected that the candidate will begin speaking about 3 o'clock. Seats for about 4,000 persons are being provided, with ample room for overflow into the race course.

Roosevelt's Plans

New York — Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic vice presidential nominee will open his first campaign tour in Chicago, Aug. 11 two days after his notification ceremonies at Hyde Park N. Y. It was announced here tonight from Chicago he will start for San Francisco making speeches in several cities enroute.

Mr. Roosevelt expects to be away three weeks on his first trip returning to the east about the first of September. His complete itinerary will be announced tomorrow.

NASON HOSPITAL GIVEN $10,000 BY ITS SUPPORTERS

Officers of the Nason Hospital at Roaring Springs have announced that Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Bobb of that place have made an endowment gift of $10,000 to the institution. Mr. Bobb is connected with the D. M. Bare Paper Co. and is also a member of the board of trustees of the hospital, while his wife is president of the Ladies' Aid society of the institution.

MOONSHINERS' PLANT ON MOUNTAIN TOP IN W. VA. IS RAIDED

Bluefield, W. Va. — In a lofty crevice high on a mountain top in a spot that would have been ideal for an eagle's nest, Sheriff Elliot, of Mercer county, discovered a moonshiner's plant, which had been operated by a gang of moonshiners, and raided it, his officers scaling the perpendicular mountain wall to reach the plant. A large quantity of mash and other necessities in the manufacture of whisky were destroyed by the raiders.

At Brush Creek falls immense cliffs line the stream on either side some of them towering 150 feet, while between the creek drops over a sheer precipice for 50 feet. The moonshiner had pitched his camp high up on the cliff in a spot that could be gained only by climbing 75 feet of the barren cliff, and then "shinning" up a giant hemlock that had found room to grow. Supplies were taken up on a wire incline.

BEEGLE REUNION

The Annual Beegle reunion will be held at Vont Station on Thursday, August 19. All are invited and expected to be there.

FARM-LABOR PARTY NAMES STATE SENATOR

CANDIDATE FOR STATE TREASURER

Bedford Man Honored

The Farmer-Labor party state convention completed its state ticket today by naming the following candidates: For United States Senator, Robert Wheeler of Allentown; state treasurer, H. A. Bixler, Cumberland county; auditor general, E. H. Flick, Altoona; congressman at large, Joseph Kintner, Lockhaven; Howard Cessna, Bedford. Two others are to be named by the executive committee, Charles Kutz of Altoona was elected chairman.

The convention, which opened yesterday, closed this afternoon at a mass meeting addressed by Robert Buck and Willard Hard, John Fitzpatrick of Chicago was not present. Mr. Buck spoke on bossism. "Your boss," he said "is the man from whom you get your money." The great parties in a national campaign spend about $10,000,000 he declared. The men and the interests which give the money to elect the president he declared, are the bosses of the world. Mr. Ward spoke of the labor movement as the home of the world.

The state platform follows closely that adopted by the national Farmer-Labor party at Chicago. Candidates chosen for presidential elector will serve as state committeemen.

EX-GOVERNOR HANLY KILLED BY TRAIN

J. FRANK HANLY KILLED IN WRECK OF AUTOMOBILE AT OHIO GRADE CROSSING

J. Frank Hanly, former governor of Indiana and candidate for president on the Prohibition ticket in 1916, and Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Baker of Kilgore, O., were killed early Sunday when a Pennsylvania freight train struck the automobile in which they were driving to Kilgore.

All three suffered fractured skulls and crushed bodies and neither recovered consciousness after being brought to a local hospital. Mr. Hanly died at 9 A. M.; Mrs. Baker at 11:30 and her husband at 3:30 P. M. Dr. and Mrs. Baker had met Mr. Hanly in Dennison, Ohio at 6:45 o'clock in the morning and were driving him to their home in Kilgore, 20 miles from Dennison.

The Baker automobile drove across the Pennsylvania tracks back of one freight and directly in front of another and was struck squarely.

All three of the injured were rushed to the Twin City hospital of Dennison where Gov. Hanly and Mrs. Baker died soon afterward. Mr. Hanly's head was badly crushed while Mrs. Baker sustained fatal injuries to her head and body. Dr. Baker's head was severely injured.

Mr. Hanly was enroute to Carrolltown, Ohio where he was to have delivered an address Monday. He had intended spending the day with the Bakers at their home in Kilgore.

HIGHER FARES

INCREASE IN FREIGHT AND PASSENGER RATES WILL ADD 100 MILLION A YEAR TO THE FEDERAL REVENUE, OFFICIALS SAY.

Washington — New freight rates and passenger fares will be made effective on August 26, instead of on August 20 for passenger fares and August 25 for freight tariffs, railroad officials announced tonight.

At the same time it was announced that the American railroads would ask the Canadian Railway Commissioners for permission to make the new rates effective on transportation from the United States to the Dominion.

Decision to postpone the putting into effect of the advanced charges authorized last Saturday by the Interstate Commerce Commission from the dates announced yesterday was reached tonight after tariff experts of the carriers had informed Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, that it would be impossible to have the blanket schedules ready before August 21. Under the orders of the commission the new schedules must be filed five days before they become effective.

Application of the new schedules to transportation to Canada, officials said will mean that shippers will pay freight charges under the new tariffs for their classification territories unless the shipment passes through more than one group before crossing the line, in which case the inter-territorial rate which is to be advanced 23 1-3 per cent. would apply.

Canadian railways it was said will apply to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to make the new charges effective on transportation from the Dominion into the United States.

Boosts Government Income

Increased revenues, officially estimated at $100,000,000 annually, will accrue to the treasury as a result of the advance in transportation rates allowed the railroads. The added income for the government, officials said tonight, would be derived from increased transportation taxes, which are paid by the public—as well as through operation of the income and excise provisions of the revenue laws.

Mr. Bobb is connected with the D. M. Bare Paper Co. and is also a member of the board of trustees of the hospital, while his wife is president of the Ladies' Aid society of the institution.

MOONSHINERS' PLANT ON MOUNTAIN TOP IN W. VA. IS RAIDED

Bluefield, W. Va.—In a lofty crevice high on a mountain top in a spot that would have been ideal for an eagle's nest, Sheriff Elliot, of Mercer county, discovered a moonshiner's plant, which had been operated by a gang of moonshiners, and raided it, his officers scaling the perpendicular mountain wall to reach the plant. A large quantity of mash and other necessities in the manufacture of whisky were destroyed by the raiders.

At Brush Creek falls immense cliffs line the stream on either side some of them towering 150 feet, while between the creek drops over a sheer precipice for 50 feet. The moonshiner had pitched his camp high up on the cliff in a spot that could be gained only by climbing 75 feet of the barren cliff, and then "shinning" up a giant hemlock that had found room to grow. Supplies were taken up on a wire incline.

FARM-LABOR PARTY NAMES STATE TICKET

WHEELER FOR U. S. SENATOR AND BIXLER FOR STATE TREASURER

Bedford Man Honored

The Farmer-Labor party state convention completed its state ticket today by naming the following candidates: For United States Senator, Robert Wheeler of Allentown; state treasurer, H. A. Bixler, Cumberland county; auditor general, E. H. Flick, Altoona; congressman at large, Joseph Kintner, Lockhaven; Howard Cessna, Bedford. Two others are to be named by the executive committee. Charles Kutz of Altoona was elected chairman.

The convention, which opened yesterday, closed this afternoon at a mass meeting addressed by Robert Buck and Willard Hard. John Fitzpatrick of Chicago was not present. Mr. Buck spoke on bossism. "Your boss," he said "is the man from whom you get your money." The great parties in a national campaign spend about $10,000,000 he declared. The men and the interests which give the money to elect the president he declared, are the bosses of the president. Mr. Ward spoke of the labor movement as the home of the world.

The state platform follows closely that adopted by the national Farmer-Labor party at Chicago. Candidates chosen for presidential elector will serve as state committeemen.

EX-GOVERNOR HANLY KILLED BY TRAIN

J. FRANK HANLY KILLED IN WRECK OF AUTOMOBILE AT OHIO GRADE CROSSING

J. Frank Hanly, former governor of Indiana and candidate for president on the Prohibition ticket in 1916, and Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Baker of Kilgore, O., were killed early Sunday when a Pennsylvania freight train struck the automobile in which the party were driving to Kilgore.

All three suffered fractured skulls and crushed bodies and neither recovered consciousness after being brought to a local hospital. Mr. Hanly died at 9 A. M.; Mrs. Baker at 11:30 and her husband at 3:30 P. M. Dr. and Mrs. Baker had met Mr. Hanly in Dennison, Ohio at 6:45 o'clock in the morning and were driving him to their home in Kilgore, 20 miles from Dennison.

The Baker automobile drove across the Pennsylvania tracks back of one freight and directly in front of another and was struck squarely.

All three of the injured were rushed to the Twin City hospital of Dennison where Gov. Hanly and Mrs. Baker died soon afterward. Mr. Hanly's head was badly crushed while Mrs. Baker sustained fatal injuries to her head and body. Dr. Baker's head was severely injured.

Mr. Hanly was enroute to Carrolltown, Ohio where he was to have delivered an address Monday. He had intended spending the day with the Bakers at their home in Kilgore.

Barefoot Reunion

The third annual Barefoot Reunion will be held on Saturday, August 14th, 1920, one mile west of Pleasantville. Interesting speakers will be present and music will be furnished by William Davis of Pittsburgh and an accompanist. Everybody welcome.

POSTPONE DATE OF HIGHER FARES

INCREASE IN FREIGHT AND PASSENGER RATES WILL ADD 100 MILLION A YEAR TO THE FEDERAL REVENUE, OFFICIALS SAY.

Washington—New freight rates and passenger fares will be made effective on August 26, instead of on August 20 for passenger fares and August 25 for freight tariffs, railroad officials announced tonight.

At the same time it was announced that the American railroads would ask the Canadian Railway Commissioners for permission to make the new rates effective on transportation from the United States to the Dominion.

Decision to postpone the putting into effect of the advanced charges authorized last Saturday by the Interstate Commerce Commission from the dates announced yesterday was reached tonight after tariff experts of the carriers had informed Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, that it would be impossible to have the blanket schedules ready before August 21. Under the orders of the commission the new schedules must be filed five days before they become effective.

Application of the new schedules to transportation to Canada, officials said will mean that shippers will pay freight charges under the new tariffs for their classification territories unless the shipment passes through more than one group before crossing the line, in which case the inter-territorial rate which is to be advanced 23 1-3 per cent., would apply.

Canadian railways it was said will apply to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to make the new charges effective on transportation from the Dominion into the United States.

Boosts Government Income

Increased revenues, officially estimated at $100,000,000 annually, will accrue to the treasury as a result of the advance in transportation rates allowed the railroads. The added income for the government, officials said tonight, would be derived from increased transportation taxes, which are paid by the public—as well as through operation of the income and excise provisions of the revenue laws.

OHIO HAS STILL MORE CANDIDATES FOR JOB OF VICE PRESIDENT

Farmer-Labor and Single Tax Choice Both Come From Buckeye State

Cleveland, O.—Ohio, "the mother of Presidents," now has four nominees on four tickets in the Presidential and Vice-Presidential derby. Three are editors and publishers and the fourth is the head of a book publishing house. Two candidates for Vice-President are Clevelanders.

In addition to James M. Cox, Dayton, Democratic nominee for President, editor and publisher of the Dayton News and Springfield News, and Warren G. Harding, Marion, Republican nominee for President, editor and publisher of the Marion Star, the new additions to Ohio's list are: Max S. Hayes, Cleveland farmer—Labor Party's nominee for Vice-President, editor and publisher of the Cleveland Citizen, a weekly labor paper, and Richard C. Barnum, Cleveland, Single Tax Party's nominee for Vice-President. He is head of a book publishing company and is regarded here as the tallest candidate who has ever aspired to that office. He stands six feet eight inches in his stocking feet. He was born in Texas 39 years ago.

FRANKLIN LING

Franklin Ling, a native of this country, died on Sunday at his home in Pittsburgh at the age of 68 years. His body was brought to Bedford Sunday and was taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. William Stayer, near Vont Station. Funeral services were held Tuesday morning in the Pleasant Valley Lutheran church Rev. A. B. Miller of this place conducting the services. Burial will be in the adjoining cemetery. Mr. Ling is survived by his widow, several children, two sisters and a brother: Mrs. Stayer, Mrs. Mary Lee of Bedford and Ambrose Ling of Johnstown.

HEALTH SCHOOL

Pennsylvania State Department

Questions.

1. What are Koplik spots?
2. What do they signify?
3. How may the spread of measles be prevented?

MEASLES

Six more cases of measles are reported today. The School Board is considering the advisability of closing the schools.

Mrs. English laid down the newspaper and rubbed her glasses.

"The idea," she said, "close the schools for measles. Measles is natural for children, and the sooner they have 'em, the better over with 'em, the better. I tell mothers to take their youngsters where measles is, so they can catch 'em."

Was Mrs. English right?

She did not know that during the past five years 3870 Pennsylvania children died from measles; an annual average of 774.

During the same period, scarlet fever claimed less than half this number.

Mrs. English knew measles when she saw or smelled it: fever, headache, red watery eyes, sneezing, dry cough, later followed by the measles rash of irregularly shaped bright red spots, which disappear by the seventh or eighth day; that was all.

She also knew measles was "ketch-in'."

One day when she "just dropped in" at the Carson's, she saw Dr. Johnson examining the inside of little Freddie's cheek. Dr. Johnson was her good friend, she baked the best mince pies in Blacksburg. This was in the old-time days, before January 17, when all good mince pies had a ting, so he said: "Come here, Mrs. English, I want to show you something. This can be seen only in strong daylight."

Then the Doctor proceeded to press his finger into Freddie's cheek until he had turned the inner side of it into plain view. "Look closely at the bright red spots on the lining of the cheek and you will see in the center of each a tiny bluish-white, glistening dot. These are called Koplik's spots. Whenever you find them you may be sure that measles will develop in from one to three days."

They were hard to see, but Mrs. English had good spectacles and she made them out quite plainly.

When Mrs. English came home that day she found her little grandson, Edgar, dull, feverish, with running nose and red eyes. In five minutes, Edgar, in Grandma's lap, before the strong light at the front window, was making vigorous protest as his cheek was turned wrong side out. The little shiny Koplik spots were there.

Edgar was not getting well at the end of a week. Bronchopneumonia, a common complication, set in.

He was not well at the end of one, of two, of three months. He stayed thin and weak.

The Doctor came one day and, as the little patient sat propped up in the big chair on the front porch, he tapped his chest and listened with the stethoscope. He told Edgar funny stories and laughed, but there was no laughter in the Doctor's heart.

Tuberculosis, a common sequel of measles, was present and rapidly progressing.

Mrs. English no longer advises mothers "to take their children where measles is."

There were 34,000 cases of measles reported in Pennsylvania in 1917; there were many unreported cases. Out of every 65 cases reported one died; mostly those under two years.

Measles is most transmissible in the beginning period before the rash comes out, when the eyes are red, the nose running and the child is feverish and coughs. It is carried by coughing in a close room, by the hands, possibly by handkerchiefs, pencils, towels, drinking cups, etc. Its spread can be lessened by early recognition and prompt quarantine.

The law requires that measles be reported. When no doctor is called those responsible for the care of children are required to report all cases of sore throat, rash or persistent cough. The law further requires that school children suffering from fever or sore throat be sent home. When measles is reported it is quarantined for a minimum period of sixteen days. No child is allowed to come to school from a measles home till the quarantine is lifted.

Quarantine means that no one but the Doctor or the Nurse shall enter a room occupied by a measles patient, or touch anything which such a patient has touched till it has been sterilized.

When a measles child is sent home the school is dismissed only for such period as is needful to accomplish a thorough cleaning and airing of the room. The children's parents are cautioned not to send them to school if they are droopy; and every child is each morning, carefully inspected for red eyes, running noses, sore throat, cough, or better still, lack of pep, which usually precedes the more pronounced symptoms which denote that the contagious stage has been reached. Consumption is a common sequel of measles, it occurs only in children who have already had the seeds of it implanted in their systems, or who have been exposed to infection while still weakened.

HOW TO RID FLOCK OF FLEAS

Necessary to Clean and Spray Houses and Runs Thoroughly and Then Treat the Fowls.

In many of the Southern and Southwestern states fowls and chicks are often infested by a species of flea, commonly known as the "stick-tight" flea, because of its habit of sticking to one place on the bird instead of moving about like lice and mites. They are usually found in clusters on the comb, wattles, and around the eyes. Chicks, when infested, often die quickly. Old fowls, while usually stronger and more resistant, will cease laying, or nearly so, and sometimes die as the result of the attacks.

"Stick-tight" fleas breed in cracks and crevices of brood coops and poultry houses, and dry animal or vegetable refuse, but not in damp or wet places. Therefore, to get rid of them it is necessary to clean and spray the houses and runs thoroughly, as well as to treat the birds, say poultry specialists in the United States department of agriculture. Grease the comb and wattles of the fowls and chicks with a preparation of kerosene and lard—one part kerosene to three parts of lard—being very careful not to use too much of the mixture or get any of it in the birds' eyes or on other places where it is not necessary, as it may cause injury if used too freely.

Clean and spray the coops and houses thoroughly, the same as for poultry mites; also wet or spray the

yards or runs, especially any dry soil about the poultry houses, such as dirt floors or ground underneath a board floor, with a solution of salt and water, which helps to keep the ground moist and prevents the fleas from breeding.

OYSTER SHELLS ARE NEEDED

Lime Is Essential for Hens to Manufacture Eggs—Fowls Will Balance Own Ration.

Pullets and hens do better for having oyster shell as a regular part of their ration. This was proved by the New York experiment station some years ago, when a poultry writer condemned the use of oyster shell as unnecessary.

It was proved that a pound of oyster shell contains enough lime to manufacture about seven dozen eggs. This should not be fed in the mash. Fowls know more about what they need to eat than we do. If they have the oyster shell, ground bone, meat scraps and grit in hoppers before them, with a variety of ground grains in dry mash, they will balance their ration better than we can balance it for them.

DUST BATH VERY IMPORTANT

To Control Chicken Lice It Is Necessary That Fowls Be Given Some Light Material.

One important condition in controlling chicken lice is to give the fowls abundant opportunity to dust themselves. For this purpose, dust, air slaked lime, ashes, or any light, dusty material is suitable. Fresh, slightly damp (but not wet) earth in which to scratch or dust should always be available.

TURKEYS ARE HARD TO RAISE

Reason Is Because Poults Are Allowed to Become Chilled or Damp and Infested.

Many people say that turkeys are too hard to raise, and fewer of them are raised from the number of eggs set than any other kind of fowl. This is almost always because the little poults are allowed to get chilled or damp or lousy during the first month or six weeks. After that age turkeys are the hardest of fowls

Firestone

Why did sales of Firestone 3½-inch tires increase 96% the first six months of this year?

The motoring public found in the product exactly what it demanded—a balanced tire—uniform service.

You, multiplied by thousands, getting your most miles per dollar expended for tires, demonstrated the efficiency of the balanced 3½—the Firestone.

Firestone built a single plant (Plant No. 2) to specialize in tires for small cars and got results which have been passed on to you at low cost—most miles per dollar.

It is more than thickness of tread, the mystery of rubber compounding, the size of the breaker strip, the number of plies of fabric, the heavy cushion or the greater air displacement that has put greater tire mileage—more economy—more comfort at your call.

It is the balanced co-ordination of all parts of the Firestone 3½ by specialists who have given eighteen years' study and practice to tire needs. Ask your dealer.

FARM BUREAU NEWS

Fruit Growers Picnic.

Mr. Fruit Grower have you set aside, Friday, August 13, to attend your own picnic? Reports indicate a large crowd and a short but interesting program is assured. Do you know that there are well over two hundred orchardists in Bedford county, each representing from 100 to 6000 trees? Most of these men will be there and profit by learning something new. It is better to go
than to wish you had gone.

Why a fruit growers picnic, you say? It is no secret so tell your neighbor orchardist: A State College
speaker will be there with something you should know, an organization
will be formed for educational purposes and you will want to have a hand in forming it. Learn something from other fruit men, they will learn something from you. Combine business pleasure with social pleasure and you have a day to remember. Friday August 13, at the Heacock & Blackburn orchards, near Clearville. Follow the green posters from Everett,
Pa.

Alfalfa Seed:

Beware of foreign grown alfalfa seed. The imports of alfalfa seed for the eleven months just ended are reported as 18,268,000 lbs. This is compared to 263,000 lbs. for the previous year and only 44,000 lbs. the year before that. Much of this seed comes from southern and central Europe, though more or less is coming from Turkistan and South America. Seed grown in these southern countries is not suitable for Pennsylvania conditions and results from its use are generally very discouraging.
As to preference in sources of domestic seed, that grow in the Dakota, Montana or Idaho is most hardy and most desirable. Seed grown in Kansas or Nebraska is fairly safe,
but avoid all seed grown farther
south.

Some of the imported seed is reported to have been shipped west
and reshipped east as domestic seed;
many wholesale houses, however, are prepared to furnish affidavits as to the original source.

Dealers should, in the interests of the farmers welfare and their own reputation, know the source of seed
before buying.

Farmers should insist upon northern domestic seed.

The Farm Bureau has an available
list of sources of alfalfa seed generally considered to be reliable.

Poultry Culling Demonstrations

The Farm Bureau in cooperation with the Poultry Extension Department of the Pennsylvania State College, will hold two Poultry Selection Meetings this summer to demonstrate the common methods of determining whether a hen is laying or not, and if she has earned the right to stay in the flock another year.

County agent L. R. Mollenaurer, has planned these meetings to reach
those interested in poultry as far as possible. The first meeting will be held at the farm of Wilbert Barton,
Six Mile Run, Pa. August 30, at 2 P.
M. The second at the farm of G. S.
Zembower, Buffalo Mills Station, Pa.
August 31, 2 P. M. If you want to know how to detect the "boarder" in your flock, attend one of these meetings. Every one will be given an opportunity to handle a number of birds, thus securing actual experience under the direction of the Poultry Specialist.

Less Sugar in Jellies and Jams.

One-fifth to one-quarter less sugar can be used in making jelly and jams, experiments made by household experts in the United States Department of Agriculture experimental kitchen indicate.

Another sugar saving wrinkle tested by the experiment kitchen is to add one quarter teaspoon of salt
to each cup of fruit juice for jelly
or pulp for jam, marmalade, and fruit this makes the absence of the full amount of sugar less noticeable.
The salty taste will disappear after the product has stood for a few weeks, but the flavor will be much richer for the addition of the salt.
Salt was so used in England
during the war, and the method suggested was based on reports of the process.

With fruits of pronounced flavor,
or where lemon and orange peel or spices are used for flavoring those with mild flavor, various syrups take the place of part of the granulated sugar. Usually half and half is the proportion used in substitution.

Learn to Recognize the Whorled
Milkweed—Poisonous to Cattle,
Horses, and Sheep.

Stockmen should learn to recognize and avoid the whorled milkweed. It is a plant very poisonous to cattle, horses and sheep, which grows abundantly in certain sections of southwestern Colorado, southern Utah, and the northern counties of Arizona and New Mexico, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, which has made an investigation of the effects of this plant on stock. Herds should not be given the opportunity to eat any considerable quantity of this plant.
It is especially dangerous to trail
sheep over a whorled milkweed area or to bed them down in the immediate neighborhood.

Is a Foothill Plant.
The whorled milkweed is a foothill plant, not being found above an altitude of 7,500 feet, and sometimes grows with great luxuriance about ditches and in abandoned fields. As small a quantity as 2½ ounces of the green plant will kill a sheep and 2½ pounds may kill a 2-year old steer. Horses are not likely to eat it, but if they do they are as easily poisoned as sheep.

Frequent cases of poisoning occur when animals are confined to areas where the plant grows and have little else to eat, and under such circumstances heavy losses result. Many animals also have been killed by eating hay containing the plant dried. If they have consumed
a sufficient quantity to be affected
they usually die. No remedy that will prevent death in such cases has been found.

Difficult to Eradicate.
The whorled milkweed is exceedingly difficult to eradicate, but by cutting it down before the heads are formed much can be accomplished in pastures and along trails. Ordinarily it stands from 1 to 3 feet in height.

Persons interested in securing
more information regarding this menace to live stock and illustrations
by which it can be easily identified should write the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for a department bulletin entitled, "The Whorled Milkweed."

makes the following as his terse
platform:

"Smash down the high cost of living, not only by putting profiteers
in jail, but by taking from our exploiter the resources through which the people are robbed." "The meat industry, the coal mines, the railroads and all public utilities, such as gas and electric corporations,
must be taken out of the control of private capitalists."

Public Sale

The Borough Council of the Borough of Bedford, Pennsylvania, will offer at public sale near the intersection of Pitt and Richard Streets, on Saturday, August 7th, 1920, at 3 o'clock P. M. TEN TON, FAIR-BANKS SCALE. Terms made known on day of sale.

Pretty Good Clinch.

As a rule, when a man manages to sell himself at his own valuation there is a pretty good clinch that there is a swindled purchaser in the community.
Houston Post

LANDLORD IS HUMAN.

With the discovery of a landlord
who says he refuses to profiteer and that the 10 per cent return on his investment under the old scale of rents
is enough for him there might seem to be ground for hope that the era of skyrocketing prices for homes was near an end. But, alas, one such landlord is very like the single swallow which does not make a summer. This landlord is refreshingly old-fashioned. He has had the same tenants for many years,
and he wishes to keep them in his house. He lives in the building himself, and finds it agreeable to be friends with his neighbors. That is the explanation of his astonishing but welcome stand. He always has been a good neighbor; he appreciates other good neighbors around him, and he doesn't wish to be unneighborly toward them. "Small town stuff," the scoffer may jeer. But it is more of that small town spirit and willing to be of a friendly frame of mind that
New York and other American cities need. In the small town kindly courtesy and mutual helpfulness go far toward making life worth living for its brightness and good cheer, says New York Telegram. Let's have more of it here in New York.

A French aviator recently made the flight from Paris to Lyons at the rate of nearly two and one-half miles per minute. He did this by ascending to a height so great that air resistance was much decreased. Hitherto this advantage has been offset by the fact that engines deliver less power at high altitudes, but a simple device for compressing the air before it is forced into the carburetor has overcome the difficulty. One more victory in the conquest of the aerial ocean, but while the invention will speed mail deliveries
and be of great advantage in emergencies of all sorts, it will cut no figure
in the air transportation of passengers,
says Chicago Evening Post. Only people in fairly robust health can stand the strain of being hoisted in a few minutes to an elevation five or six thousand higher than Pike's Peak, and let down to ordinary levels still more suddenly when the voyage is over.

The housewives will, in cleaning out
the house, throw away or burn great quantities of waste. The lessons learned during the war should not be forgotten; let it be borne in mind that the reclamation of waste is a problem
which is not only fitted for war times
but for the times of peace as well.
The argument which may be advanced
from time to time that the utilization of waste material in times other than war is not necessary is fallacious, because it is essential that some means of offsetting the high cost of living be found. Do not waste, but turn it back into the channels of commerce, says Indianapolis News. You will be surprised at the money that can be derived by turning over all character of old papers, rags, rubber, metals and other odds and ends to the junk dealers, who will in turn start this waste
back into useful trades.

Excited people who gather about
city shops and talk parlor bolshevism
should not entertain the delusion that they constitute or even represent the United States. Ninety-nine out of a hundred Americans now regard bolshevism as a bad joke, and they object
to having any joke—particularly a bad
one—carried too far.

Both men and women in Russia are being compelled to register for work without distinction of class. This is not the paradise which was expected
from the workingman's rule, says Baltimore American. The people may wake to the realization that the soviets are more autocratic than the czar.

The National Geographic society announces that the United States is consuming more oil than it is producing,
and it might have added that the supply of Americans willing to die in an attempt to keep the American holdings in the Mexican oil fields is also running a little low.

That year of thirteen months, each month of equal length, is hopeless.
When such a row is stirred up over a single hour from April to October,
what kind of a social earthquake
would result from seeking to alter the month?

What could the state do with all the money if every automobilist who exceeds the speed limit, parks on the wrong side of the street and does any of the many other forbidden things
were to be arrested and fined?

The United States wants, in settlement of the Turkish question, to protect the Armenians. Something will have to be done about it promptly or there will be no Armenians left to protect.

Propaganda never made a corn crop.
That still remains the job of the sun shine, the man, the mule and the plow.

DEMOCRATS INSIST
UPON "BOODLE"
PROBES

Efforts of Republicans to Put Matter to Rest Will Prove of No Avail.

DEMAND FULL PUBLICITY

Cox Is Expected to Discuss Subject in His Speech of Acceptance, Saturday

Washington, D. C., Aug. 3.—With the formal opening of the Presidential campaign only a few days distant,
there are indications that the question of "boodle" funds, which many highly-placed politicians had hoped be relegated to the rear, will play a much more important part than many now suspect. Before leaving for a vacation in the Maine woods some weeks ago, Senator Kenyon, a Republican member of the committee on Campaign Expenditures let it be known that the Republicans would be glad to drop the probe so far as Presidential candidates are concerned and give both Senator Harding and Governor Cox clean bills of health.

Senator Kenyon does not hold allegiance to the Old Guard and is not in entire sympathy with the Penrose-Lodge machine. In fact, he has been disciplined during the past year by being kept out of a committee chairmanship because of his independence. He has, however,
pledged himself to Senator Harding and in the interest of party regularity, and some feel that the Iowa
Senator may suspect a further probing of Presidential expenditures will hurt Harding more than Cox.

It assuredly will, according to the view of Democrats in Washington,
who know something of the meagre campaign funds of the Democrats, as contrasted with the obviously full treasury of the Republican campaign committee. These reports will not down that the Republican leaders have determined upon a campaign
conducted on similar lines to that of 1896, when Mark Hanna immortalized himself in Republican eyes by showing the power of ample campaign funds properly distributed.

Republican Smoke Screen

The popular interpretation of the wall of Treasurer Fred W. Upham, of the Republican National Committee
may have to be changed before the campaign is ever so as to permit contributions of $1000 and over, is that it is a smoke screen designed to divert attention while the real game is being rigged up elsewhere. Everybody connected with politics in Washington seems to pretty well understand that no contest for Presidency ever has or ever will be waged by the Republicans so long as the party
is constituted as at present with restriction on campaign contributions,
such as suggested by Chairman Hays
and Candidate Harding.

Senator Pomerene, a Democratic member of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, is said to be one of those who is not satisfied with the program to drop the probe so far as it concerns the Presidential candidates. Candidate Cox is expected to have something rather pointed to say in his speech of acceptance with respect to reports that have reached him of a huge fund to be expended in behalf of his opponents. It is believed that under the impetus of his charges there will be a movement
that will result in the expenditures committee going further into the matter as soon as it reconvenes the latter part of this month or the first of September.

Heavy Loads for Republicans.

Many Republican leaders are anxious to get as far away as possible
from all public discussion of campaign funds, following the agitation
prior to the Chicago convention which resulted in the sensational disclosures of delegate buying in behalf of Wood and Lowden. The odium of that pre-convention fights still hangs over the Republican organization in many States. In Missouri, where each member of the Republican State Committee received $2500 of Lowden
money, the Republican organization
is reported as practically disrupted.
The defeat of Senator Spencer Republican, who took the place of the late Senator Stone, Democrat, in the upper House of Congress, is practically conceded by all elements
as the result of the party demoralization growing out of this scandal. In Michigan, where Senator Newberry
is under sentence for hoodluming in the Senatorial election of two years ago,
the Republicans have another load to carry.

When the Senate committee investigation is resumed it is understood that one phase of the situation
that will be looked into is a report that several industrial leaders of great wealth who are allied with the Republican party have decided that direct contributions to candidates for Congress on the Republican ticket or their campaign managers will solve the problem of evading the inevitable publicity attendant on contributions to the National Committee. By putting money into close Congressional districts these men are said to feel that they would help Harding, while not getting on record as contributing to these national funds.

Efforts to Break Solid South
Once more the "breaking of the Solid South" is one of the political mirages dangled by the national Republican leaders before their brethren of the South in the tier of States nearest to the Mason and Dixon line. This has long been a favorite scheme for securing campaign funds by the local politician
from the offers of the national Committee. These campaign expenses of the local candidates or to replenish their individual exchequers.

Every four years a group of Southern Republicans come forward with this promise if the campaign money is forthcoming in sufficient quantities.
This year the harbingers of Republican victory in the South have made their appearance as per schedule.
They tell the same old stories about
golden opportunities in Tennessee,
North Carolina, Kentucky and even Texas, if the sinews of political warfare can only be had in sufficient quantities. Persons who know the conditions in these States laugh at the stories, but, nevertheless, it seems that the brethren from the South who visit Republican national headquarters are not to be sent home empty-handed.

Not Gubernatorial primary fights
in Tennessee, North Carolina, Texas
and other Southern States afford some slight hope to some of the Republican managers, who seem to forget that these contests within the party
occur regularly without serious damage to the continued Democratic domination in State affairs. Reports from border States like Kentucky
show that Republican hopes of success in that section, so far as the national ticket is concerned, are the subject of merry jest.

The KITCHEN
CABINET

Nothing so needs reforming as other people's habits.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A novel iced-tea combination which we will like to try some of these warm summer days is this: Prepare tea
in the ordinary fashion, sweeten
it and let it cool. When ready to serve put a spoonful or two of lemon ice or
lemon sherbet in a glass and cover
with the iced tea.

Cherry Betty.—Butter a deep dish
and cover the bottom with pitted cherries. Sprinkle the fruit with sugar, nutmeg and coconut with sufficient cherry juice to moisten. On top of this spread a layer of fluffy bread crumbs; repeat until the dish is full.
Finish the top with the crumbs. Cover and stand in the oven one hour, then uncover and brown quickly. Serve hot with sweetened cream as a sauce.

Curant Catsup.—Take five pounds
of currants, three pounds of sugar,
one tablespoonful of cinnamon, one tablespoonful of allspice, one teaspoonful of black pepper, one teaspoonful of salt and half a pint of vinegar.
Wash the currants and rub them
through a sieve; then add the other ingredients and boil for twenty minutes. Bottle as you do any catsup.
This catsup has an especially delicate flavor and is quite worth the trouble
of making.

Macaron Cream.—Soak one-fourth of a box of gelatine in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water. Make a boiled custard of a pint of milk and the yolks of three eggs, one-half cupful of sugar, salt and vanilla to taste. Pour this custard over the softened gelatine, then add one cupful of macaron crumbs and set away to cool. When this begins to thicken, add the whites
of the eggs beaten stiff. Mix well, pour into a mold and set in a cool place for three hours. Serve with small cakes.

Frozen Macedone.—Drain the juice
from a cupful of canned or preserved cherries. Add a cupful each of canned pears, plums and pineapple,
put through the meat chopper; add
the cherry juice, sweeten to taste. Add one-fourth of a cupful of water and
two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice.
Freeze the mixture except the cherries
which are stirred in when ready to pack. Let stand several hours to ripen.

Lizards Victims of Curiosity.

Little boys of the Orient often capture lizards by catering to their curiosity. When one of them spies a lizard
he scurries into a crevice he takes a slipknot of colored straw and lets it before the hole. After a time the lizard is so attracted by the color
and the sight of the straw that it comes out on to the straw and is captured.

A Gas Tight Furnace

THE WATERBURY SEAMLESS PIPELESS FURNACE

is made of welded steel. There are no seams to develop leaks, no cast iron to crack and let out smoke and gas. It is an efficient, durable heating plant.

Stove heat is uneven and unsatisfactory. Stoves take up a lot of space in rooms—always the best rooms in the house. They mean ashes, dust, dirt and smoke all over the house.

Stoves are out of date. You want more than one or two rooms heated in winter. Stoves are so unsightly. Why keep them and be ashamed of your home when neighbors call?

The Economical Waterbury

goes into your basement; heats your entire home thru a single register. It will outlast many stoves. Costs less than other types of furnaces and burns fuel more economically.

The Waterbury fills your entire home with warm, moist, healthful air. It means better health, more cheerfulness in the home. Can be installed in a few hours time. Why not be proud of your home when neighbors call?

Call at our store and see this modern furnace. You will be surprised to learn how economically you can have modern, cheerful home comfort.

A Woman Likes to be Admired, No Matter How Old She May Be

Nature undoubtedly made woman to be admired, and man to admire her. No woman ever gets so old that she doesn't want admiration, and no man ever gets beyond admiring her.

Good looks in women do not depend upon age, but upon health. You never see a good-looking woman who is weak, run-down, irritable, out of sorts, fidgety and nervous.

Headaches, backaches, dragging pains, irregularities and troubles of that sort are all destroyers of beauty. Men do not admire sickness. Here is what one Pennsylvania woman says:

Seranton, Pa.—"For over a year I suffered with feminine trouble. I lost in weight until I was almost skin and bones. I had severe backaches, pains in my side and stomach. I suffered with a gastric condition and could not retain anything on my stomach. At times a drink of water would distress me. I doctored but did not seem to improve until I began taking Dr. Pierce's medicine and a few bottles of this so completely cured me that I have never had any return of these ailments. I grow strong and gained back my weight. I can recommend 'Favorite Prescription' to those who suffer as I did."—MRS. BERTHA SOHNS, 8 S. Webster Ave.

THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE

The candidate selected, from the standpoint of the men who selected him, is ideal. His outstanding quality—if such a quality can be said to be outstanding—is utter commonplaceness. To the mass of American voters, Warren G. Harding is hardly even a name. His Ohio career has been so inconspicuous that, until his election as Senator, his name had not even appeared in Who's Who. His remarks in the Senate, for the last five years have seldom been printed anywhere except in the Congressional Record.

When great public questions have appeared, no one has ever thought of seeking the opinions of the Ohio Senator. No popular magazine, scanning the horizon for possible Presidential material, has ever considered presenting to its readers a sketch of the life and character of Warren G. Harding. A few months ago word came from Washington that the Senatorial junta had selected the Ohio Senator as their candidate in the approaching campaign; soon afterward, however, the public was informed that Senator Harding had developed so little popular strength that this plan had been abandoned. The fact that Mr. Harding had failed to secure a unanimous delegation from his own state sufficiently explained the discouragement which his sponsors felt. The Senator as a Presidential possibility then sank into that obscurity from which he was suddenly rescued when the convention became deadlocked over Wood. It was only when he had actually been nominated that the voters whose suffrages he seeks first formed his acquaintance. The biographical details which the newspaper patiently unearthed were scanty and not inspiring. It appeared that Senator Harding was a genial, respectable, hard-working American and that no scandal attached to his private or political life. Almost his whole career had been spent as a proprietor and editor of a country newspaper; as a country editor he had served as Lieutenant-Governor of Ohio, and had been defeated for the Governorship before winning his election as Senator. In the Senate his companionable personality had made him popular with his associates, but he had never been a leader. His name had never been associated with important legislation—he was simply a good-natured, well-dressed member of the Republican majority who could always be depended upon to vote as party discipline directed. A search of his activities in Senate disclosed that Mr. Harding had introduced 139 bills, of which only 9 concerned matters of public interest, and these trifling ones; the remaining 130 were private measures, the larger number granting and increasing pensions. That record sufficiently painted the candidate's portrait as a statesman. He is evidently the common type of parochial legislator: he is the pork barrel law-maker who regards his duty as done when he has "taken care" of the folks at home.

Business Partners

The law safeguards and in some measure prescribes the relation between a bank and its client, just as it does between business partners.

But, as in a business partnership, if the relation is really worth while legal obligations must be supplemented—bank and client must work together.

You will find this institution a good business partner.

LADY LARKSPUR

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

an' wuz sleepin' on me bench here in the garden when the hollerin' at the garage woke me up. I sits quiet, listenin' an' this guy drops into the garden an' wuz crawlin' past me bench an' I pinches 'im. He wuz fer havin' a fight an' we knocks over one of the big urns an' lit in the tank. He says it's a thousand bones an' ye turn me loose, he says, an' I soused 'im agin fer that."

The man was still choking from the sousing and Dutch turned him over and pounded him vigorously on the back, assisted by Zimmerman, the obliging valet, who had seized the occasion to show his hand on the side of the allies. "Shall I telephone for the Barton police, sir?" asked Antoine, with an extreme exaggeration of his professional manner.

This was obviously the thing to do, but I feigned not to hear the question while I debated the matter. It was plain that many things relating to the capture were veiled in mystery; that if Mrs. Bashford and her companion were involved in an international tangle and had in their possession something that vitally concerned the nations at war, common civility demanded that I handle the arrest of Montani's agent in such a manner as to shield them. I was thinking hard and in my perplexity even considered sending a messenger to Torrence; but he was already suspicious and would be very likely to summon Haynor immediately and precipitate a crisis. I was not prepared to face. To invite the attention of the American state department to the increasingly complex situation would not be giving my aunt the chance I meant she should have to clear herself.

The captive had got upon his feet and stood dazedly staring at us. He refused to answer my questions, even when I suggested that if he could give a satisfactory account of himself he would be released. He only doggedly shook his head. When I asked if he had been hurt in his bout with Dutch he smiled and extended his arms in denial. He was a very decent-looking fellow, blue-eyed and smooth-shaven, who seemed to accept his plight with a degree of good humor.

I decided that as nothing would be gained by sending him to the Barton laboose that night, I would assume responsibility of detaining him until I had groped my way through the maze of suspicious and circumstances that enveloped him.

"Get some dry clothes for this man and lock him up in the toolhouse. Be sure he has blankets, and you'd better give him some hot coffee."

The captive manifested relief at my decision and broke his silence to thank me, which he did in very good English. His submissiveness only deepened my perplexity, but I couldn't help laughing as he walked away surrounded by the "troops," with Dutch leading the way—Dutch fully conscious that he had indicated himself and disposed to be rather disdainful of his comrades.

I hurried to the house, where I found Alice and Mrs. Farnsworth ministering to Elsie, who had been taken there by their order. Elsie, sharing with Dutch the honors of the night, lay on a day-enport, where she had received first aid. Alice rose from her knees as I entered, gathering up strips of bandages, and turned to me laughingly.

"Elsie's injuries are not serious; only disagreeable bruises in the face. There will be no scars, I'm sure. We'll keep her at the house for a few days until she's quite fit again. Surely any one who has questioned Elsie's loyalty ought to be satisfied now."

"You certainly managed it very cleverly, Elsie. We're all very grateful."

Elsie, her face covered with bandages, acknowledged my thanks by wiggling her foot.

Mrs. Farnsworth said she would put Elsie to bed. Now, I thought, Alice would make some sign if she knew anything that would explain Montani and the prisoner in the toolhouse. But the whole affair only moved her to laughter and she seemed less a grown woman than ever in her white robe. My efforts to impress her with the seriousness of the attempt to secure the fan only added to her delight.

"How droll! How very droll! You couldn't possibly have arranged anything that would please me more! It's delicious! As you say in America, it's perfectly killing!"

I suggested that the holding of a prisoner without process of law might present embarrassing moments.

"I know," she cried, clapping her hands joyfully. "You mean we are likely to lapse into dear old in corpore! The sheriff will read a solemn paper to you and you will have to tie you to court and produce the body of the prisoner. That will be splendid!"

"It won't be so funny if—"

"Constance and I so love the unusual—and it is so hard to find!" she continued. "And yet from the moment I reached the gates of these premises things have happened! Nothing is omitted! Strange visitors; fierce attacks upon our guards, and still the mystery depends in the wee sma' hours, with heroes and heroines at every turn! To think that that absurd little Dutch was asleep in the garden and really captured the spy or whatever he is! But you are a hero, too! You shall be decorated!"

She walked to a stand and pondered a moment before a vase of roses, chose a long-stemmed red one and struck me lightly across the shoulder with it.

"Arise, sir knight! You should have knelt, but to kneel in skirts requires practice; you could hardly have managed in that monk's robe."

I couldn't be sure whether she was mocking me or whether there was really liking under this nonsense. I was beyond the point of being impatient with her. I was helpless in her hands; she would do with me as she willed, and it was my business to laugh with her, to meet her as best I could in the realm of folly.

"You must go!" she exclaimed suddenly. "Constance will be calling down the stairs for me in a moment."

"To-morrow!" I began. The wistful look she had at times come into her eyes as she stood in the center of the room, playing with the flower.

"To-morrow!" she repeated. "and to-morrow!"

"There must be endless to-morrows for you and me!" I said, and took the flower from her hand. The reverie fled in her eyes, and they were awake with reproach and dismissal. At the door I looked back. She hadn't moved and she said, very quietly, but smiling a little: "Nothing must happen to make me sorry I came. Please remember!"

CHAPTER IV.

Pursuing Knights.

I didn't sleep until near daybreak, and was aroused at nine o'clock by Flynn, who appeared at the door in his chauffeur's togs, carrying a tray.

"The wife didn't come back, sorr, but I made coffee and toast. Sorry to waken you, but I'm takin' the new car into the city."

I sat up and rubbed my eyes.

"Who's going to the city?" I demanded.

"The ladies is goin' at once, sorr. They sent orders an hour ago to be ready with the new machine. I'm late and you'll have to excuse me, sorr."

I sprang out of bed and plied him with questions, most of which he was unable to answer. I did, however, extract from him the information that nothing had occurred after I retired for the night that could have alarmed the women at the residence and prompted this abrupt departure. There was no reason why Alice shouldn't run to town if it pleased her to do so, and yet it was odd that she hadn't mentioned the matter. Flynn hurried away, and from the window I followed the car's course to the house, and a moment later caught a glimpse of it on its way to the gates.

I called from the window to one of the gardeners who knew how to manage a machine and told him to be ready to drive me to the village in half an hour. There was an express at ten-forty, and by taking it I would at least have the satisfaction of being somewhere in New York when the suitcases arrived. Antoine packed my suitcase; I am not sure that he didn't shed tears on my belongings. The old fellow was awed into silence by the rapidity with which history had been made in the past twenty-four hours, and clearly was not pleased by my desertion.

We drove past the tool-house, where I found the prisoner seated on a

"It won't be so funny if—"

when I was smoking a cigarette. He was no more communicative than when I had questioned him after his capture. He smiled in a bored fashion when I asked if he wanted anything and said he would be obliged for cigarettes and reading matter. He volunteered nothing as to his identity, and the guards said that a thorough search of the captive's clothing had disclosed nothing incriminating. He had three hundred dollars in currency (this was to cover Elsie's bribe money, I conjectured), a handkerchief, a cigarette case, and a box of matches. I directed that he be well fed and given all the reading matter he wanted, and hurried on to catch my train.

I took a room at the Thackeray club and pondered carefully whether, in spite of my misgivings, I hadn't better see Torrence and tell him all that had happened since his call on Mrs. Bashford. If there was any chance of doing the wrong thing in any matter not prescribed in the laws governing the administration of estates, he would be sure to do it; but I was far from satisfied with the results of my own management of affairs at Barton. I finally called up the trust company and learned that Torrence was in Albany attending the trial of a will case and might not be in town for a couple of days. His secretary said he had instructions to wire my daily report to Albany. I told him there had been no developments at Barton, and went out and walked. Inquiries at hotels large and small occupied me until seven o'clock. No one had heard of a Mrs. Bashford or a Mrs. Farnsworth. My inspection of the occupants of several thousand automobiles proved equally fruitless. I ate a lonely dinner at the club and resumed my search. Hanging about theater doors, staring at the crowd, is not a dignified occupation, and by nine o'clock, having seen the most belated theatergoers vanish, I was tired and discouraged. The flouting sign of Seales' "Who Killed Cork Robin?" over the door of the "As You Like It" caught my eye. I sought a seat—the last in the back—and squeezed into my place in the middle of the last row. As I had seen the place at least a dozen times, its novelty was gone for me, but the laughter of the delighted audience was cheering. The first act was reaching its culmination, and I watched it with a glow of pride in Seales' and his skillful craftsmanship.

As the curtain fell and the lights went up amid murmurs of pleasure and expectancy, I glanced across the rows of heads. The half-turned face of a man three rows in front of me suddenly caught my attention. There was something curiously familiar in his outlines and the gesture with which, at the moment, he was drawing his handkerchief across his forehead. It was Montani—beyond any question Montani—and I instinctively shrank in my seat and lifted my program as he turned round and swiftly surveyed the rows behind him.

I watched his black head intently until I remembered the superstition that by staring at a person in a public place you can make him look at you. Montani knew a great many things I wanted to know, but I must have time to adjust myself to the shock of his propinquity.

The house now took note of a stirring in the boxes. There was an excited buzz as the tall form and unmistakable features of Cecil Arrowsmith, the English actor, were recognized. I had read that day of his arrival in New York. With him were two women. My breath came hard and I clutched the iron frame of the seat in front of me so violently that its occupant turned and glared.

The trio settled into their places quickly, but not before I had satisfied myself that Arrowsmith's companions were Alice and Mrs. Farnsworth. As they fell into animated talk I saw that Alice was in her gayest humor. The distinguished tragedian seemed greatly amused by what she was saying to him.

"Must be members of Arrowsmith's company," one of my neighbors remarked. "They open in two weeks in Shakespearean repertoire."

Montani had half risen, the better to focus an opera-glass on the box. The going solemnly announced the second act, and Alice moved her chair to face the stage. Once more Montani scanned the party with his glass. As the lights faded Alice, with the pretty languorous gesture I so well remembered, opened her fan—the fan of ostrich plumes, that became a blur of white that held my eye through the dusk after the curtain rose.

Alice, Montani, and the fan! To this combination I had now to add the new element introduced into the situation by the apparent familiar acquaintance of Alice and Mrs. Farnsworth with Cecil Arrowsmith. And yet, as the play proceeded on its evening course, I reasoned that there was something extraordinary in their knowledge of the eminent actor. He had long been a personage in England and had lately been knighted. Their appearance with him at the theater really disposed of the idea that they might be impostors. The presence of Arrowsmith had put zest into the company, and I hadn't seen a better performance of Seales' play. The trio in the box joined in the prolonged applause at the end of the act.

As they resumed their talk Alice, it seemed, was relating something of moment for Arrowsmith's benefit, referring now and then to Mrs. Farnsworth as though for corroboration. The scene in the box was almost as interesting as any in the play, and the audience watched with deep absorption.

FAIRNESS IS GOVERNMENT'S ONE GREAT OBJECT IN MARKET NEWS DISTRIBUTION

Graphic Reports From Many Centers Regarding the Movement of Many Products Form the Basis of Federal Market Dispatches.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The authority back of a market report largely determines its value. Reports from the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, are counted of peculiar value in the maintenance of healthful economic conditions in America because they supply information that is comprehensive, always up-to-date, and unbiased.

What may be characterized as the key positions in the government's market-reporting organizations are the market stations. These are branches of the bureau of markets maintained in nearly a score of the larger cities, and one of their chief functions is to collect and distribute market news, relating to several or all of the following products: Fruits and vegetables, live stock and meats, dairy products, hay, grain, and mill feeds and seeds.

Most of the branch offices are connected by leased wire with Washington and receive and distribute market news daily. The original data are assembled and condensed into reports, reviews and press articles which are distributed according to the needs of the market. Most of the men in charge of this work have had technical training and considerable experience either in production or marketing.

Station Men Understand Selling.

The work of these men resembles that of the county agent in that it is localized, but it differs from it since it deals primarily with the selling and not the producing phase of agriculture. In other words, the market station man begins where the county agent, in most cases, leaves off. He is able to analyze market problems comprehensively because he meets dealers, shippers, and buyers and is in daily touch with local trade conditions.

The co-operation which the market stations maintain with State marketing agents in 27 states is a decidedly helpful feature of the market news service. The national service is concerned chiefly with the wholesale marketing of produce shipped from one state to another, but the state agents are interested in local produce, both wholesale and retail. The national and state forces often unite not only in securing information, but in helping to solve special marketing problems and conditions, such as the more rapid movement of crops in seasons of heavy production.

The service of the market stations and state agencies tends to displace many of the private agencies whose scope of operation is apt to be less comprehensive, prompt, and reliable. In addition to this general information, which might be called routine market news, various sections in the bureau of markets render important service by securing data regarding special commodities. The fertilizer sections, for example, have conducted inquiries and made reports on the supply and demand for fertilizers and fertilizer material. The transportation sections have rendered valuable aid in securing complete and regular reports on shipments, and also by expediting the unloading and return of cars. Without information on these related subjects, buyers and sellers often would go far wrong in their bargaining.

Prompt distribution of the information which the bureau of markets' representatives secure is essential to its value. Reports are collected early in the morning and are telegraphed from city to city so that they can be published the same day. In this way market information for the entire country is placed in the city dealers' hands a few hours after it is collected, and often shippers at remote country points have the data the morning following its compilation. The reports show not only actual sales or shipments of various commodities, but other important items which have a bearing on the markets.

Scope of Information.

In the course of the year the information made available through the United States department of agriculture has to do with the marketing of between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 carloads of live stock and 500,000 to 750,000 cars of fruits and vegetables. The movement of cotton, dairy products, dressed meat, grain, and feed is covered in the same comprehensive fashion. It has been estimated that the department's market news reaches from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 readers through the newspapers, while the market bulletins, reports, reviews, and special articles go to tens of thousands of growers and dealers. Obviously, the growers and dealers profit directly from the market news service because of its completeness and fairness, but of no less importance is the benefit to the public at large, resulting from healthful, above-board competition promoted by easily obtainable market information.

STEERS STARTED ON SILAGE

Material Is Bulky Enough to Eliminate Danger From Overfeeding and Is Much Relished.

Silage has largely solved the problem of starting steers on feed. It is bulky enough to eliminate danger from overeating and unless cattle are accustomed to it they rarely eat greedily of it at the start, according to George W. Godfrey of Iowa State college.

Western range cattle that never saw corn take to silage as quickly as those of our native cattle that are not accustomed to it. When fed fodder these western cattle at first pick off the leaves and husks, leaving the stalks and ears. With silage they get acquainted with the corn taste at the start.

When grain is added to the ration, if spread over the silage, it is more evenly shared by the steers. Even when cattle are going at once onto a heavy grain feed a start with silage is best, as it allows a more rapid increase in the grain ration without danger.

A short preliminary feed of silage also puts them in good condition to make the best use of the grain ration later. Silage has a place in every feed lot that nothing else can quite fill.

MORE PROTEIN IN LEGUMES

Also More Carbohydrates in Alfalfa, Cowpeas and Such Crops Than in Johnson Grass.

Alfalfa, clover, lespedeza, cowpeas, soy beans, peanuts, all contain considerably more protein and more carbohydrates as well, than the non-legume hay, such as Johnson grass, timothy, prairie sorghum, etc.

COLTS REQUIRE MUCH GRAIN

If Animals Are Compelled to Consume Large Quantities of Silage They Develop Slowly.

At the University of Missouri, colts have grown from 562 pounds in weight on September 15 to 897 pounds on April 21, on a daily ration of 8.42 pounds of one-half shelled corn and one-half oats and 7.8 pounds of hay. Colts can consume small quantities of silage, but if they are forced to eat large quantities of silage they cannot be expected to grow as much as they would if fed more liberally on grain.

Bran, when available, and a small quantity of oilseed may be fed to advantage to colts. Exercise, fresh water and good quarters must be furnished if best results are to be expected, but it should be borne in mind that the colt which arrives at its yearling form stunted and thin will be handicapped for the next two or three years of its life and may, perhaps, never fully recover.

DIGESTIBLE HAY NUTRIENTS

Nearly Three Times as Much in Timothy as in Corn Silage—Latter More Palatable.

In 100 lbs. of timothy hay there are 48.8 lbs. of digestible nutrients, or nearly three times as much as there is in corn silage. Corn silage, being a succulent feed and more palatable, on the whole, more easily digested. We have always calculated that one ton of timothy hay is equivalent to about two and a half tons of corn silage. Putting it in another way, when timothy hay is worth $10 a ton, corn silage is worth $4.

NEW-FANGLED

By GERTRUDE ARMSTRONG.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"No, Marthy, there hain't going to be no telephone. Got something else to spend my money for. Just 'cause Sarah and Fred has got such new-fangled notions into their heads, suppose you got to have the same. We've lived here all these years, and my folks before me, and never had any of these fool ideas until your sister started. Guess you'll be wanting an automobile next."

"Well, never mind," replied his wife meekly. "I just thought 'twould be kind of handy in case of sickness, living a mile from our neighbors, and I get lonesome sometimes, and could talk to Sarah."

Her husband made no reply, but went about the evening chores. 'Twas so unlike Marthy to ask him to waste money on anything so foolish. Handy, indeed! There was old Molly, whenever she wanted to visit and to run into town, who would take her in less than an hour.

She so seldom asked for anything or complained that his conscience bothered him a little, and the look of disappointment on her face he found hard to get out of his thoughts.

Never mind, some time soon, when he got his work along, they would go into town for a holiday. She had been working pretty hard lately and probably needed a change.

And thus, like most of us, he soothed his conscience with promises of better doing in the future.

When he returned to the house Marthy was just finishing her dishes.

"I guess I'll go right to bed, John," she said; "I don't feel very smart to-night."

"Well, I would," he replied, looking at her keenly. "And take something hot for that cold. I don't like the way it's hanging on. Been this way now for most a week." And he kissed her and parted her kindly.

It was two hours later when he opened their bedroom door. He tiptoed softly to the bed, where she lay, open-eyed and apparently awake.

"Looks like a storm," said John, and he crossed the room and carefully closed the window, muttering as he did so, "More new-fangled notions."

There was no response from the bed. What was the matter? 'Twas not at all like sweet-tempered Marthy to hold a grudge. He bent over her and then started back. The staring eyes and burning face did not look familiar.

"Go and see if David is covered, John. It's chilly tonight," she gasped.

David! Their boy who had been dead five years. Then it burst upon him—she was delirious. What should he do?

Get a doctor, of course. If he could only get word to Sarah! And his heart sank as he thought of the precious time he would waste driving all those miles.

"Oh, God! what would I give for a telephone!" burst from his agonized lips.

He rushed out to the stable for old Molly, backed her from her stall, and harnessed. His hands seemed palsied. It was ages before he got started. Driving with all speed he came in sight of Sarah's. They were up; he could see the gleam of lights through the trees. Five minutes more, and with bursting heart he rushed in and told them his errand.

What was there for him in life, anyway, if she was unhappy?

She who had helped him save day by day, never complaining, always cheerful—when she had asked for a part of what was really hers she had been refused, he calling it a waste of money, when but for just such a "new-fangled notion" he would have lost the best little partner man ever had.

Many weeks after a handsome little runabout drove into the yard, from which alighted three men, carrying wires and tools.

"Here's your auto, Mr. Cobb. The telephone men were coming out this way so I drove them over. If there is anything wrong let us know. Be over again by night. So long."

"Why, John, what does this mean?" asked Marthy, when the men had started to work downstairs.

"It means that the men have been working for some time, and you're a-going to have that telephone, and if you don't like this here machine you're a-going to have another one, and pick it out yourself. They might be 'new-fangled notions' but they're danged good ones to have around a house."

And Marthy smiled and thanked him as only she knew how.

Samoan National Drink.

The national beverage of the Samoan Islanders is "kava," obtained from the dried fruit of a plant known to the botanist as Piper methysticum, says the Kansas City Star. The classic method of its preparation was by chewing. Water was added, and, after straining, the stuff was ready to drink. Missionaries convinced the natives that this method did not accord with the best social customs, and so nowadays they grind the kava root in a stout mortar with a stone pestle. To any unaccustomed person kava tastes rather like soap-suds, though some say it has a flavor of vanilla. Many Americans, however, having acquired a liking for it, drink it by the gallon. But the native way of preparing it is too slow for them, and they prefer to use a meat grinder.

Insects Give Us Shellac.

Shellac is the joint product of insects and plants and comes from India. The lac insects are about one-twenty-fifth of an inch long, a bright red in color. They suck the juices of plants, digest them and exude them in the form of resin, which soon encases the whole insect. When the young insects have swarmed out the resin is scraped from the branches, ground, washed, mixed with colophony and orpiment, cooked slowly and drawn out into the thin sheets we know as shellac.

I'll Have Your Boy Running A G-O Tractor in Five Minutes

When you have a real, man's size, tractor job you want done, I'm going to bring the G-O Tractor out to your place and show you what efficiency and real simplicity in a tractor means.

I'll put your boy on that comfortable spring seat and show him how to run it in five minutes. He'll have one lever at his right for starting, stopping and reversing. Another lever at his left to get any of six speeds. Under either foot, a brake that controls right or left rear wheel independently. And that's all there is to operating a G-O.

With three 14-in. plows hitched to the adjustable drawbar, he'll plow straight, deep furrows. He'll keep an eye on the plows too, for the G-O is self steering in the furrow. And he'll plow on stiff grades and be perfectly safe--the low center of gravity in the G-O keeps all four wheels firmly on the ground.

He can't strip gears. The G-O transmission has no gears.

Anyone who knows how to handle an ordinary tool can make most adjustments ever necessary with a G-O. There'll be less to make because it has fewer parts. It has no gears on the rear wheels; and every working part runs in oil in a dust-tight casing.

Next time you're near, come in and see this 14-28 H. P. kerosene-burning tractor. Drop me a postal and I'll send you a catalog.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. L. A. WALKER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright 1920 W. S. P. Co. New York, N. Y.)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 8

THE KINGLY KINDNESS OF DAVID.

LESSON TEXT--II Sam 9:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT--David executed judgment and justice unto all his people--II Sam 8:15.
ADDITIONAL MATERIAL--Deut. 28:14, Ps 78:72.
PRIMARY TOPIC--David Kind to a Cripple.
JUNIOR TOPIC--David's Kindness to Jonathan's Son.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC--David Showing Himself Kind to YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC--Elements of Strength in David's Character.

I. David's Righteous and Impartial Reign (9:1-13).

When he was established as king over all Israel he executed judgment and justice unto all his people. In this respect he stands as a type of the Lord Jesus Christ. David's reign over all Israel was a reign of righteousness and justice will prevail in the earth.

II. David's Inquiry for Some of Saul's House to Whom He Might Show Kindness (9:1-13).

This story of David's inquiry for some of Saul's house to whom he might show kindness is one of the most touching in the Bible. It shows David's heart for the house of Saul. David's inquiry for some of Saul's house to whom he might show kindness is one of the most touching in the Bible. It shows David's heart for the house of Saul. David's inquiry for some of Saul's house to whom he might show kindness is one of the most touching in the Bible. It shows David's heart for the house of Saul.

The chief value of this lesson will be realized by making it a living story illustrating the plan of salvation. David's making inquiry for some one upon whom he can bestow kindness illustrates God taking the initiative in providing salvation for lost and needy souls. This is clearly suggested in David's expression, "show the kindness of God." Mephibosheth did not seek David's help or sympathy. Quite likely he had a fear and dread for him like the sinner has in many cases for the Lord. Salvation originated with the Lord. He did not make this provision because of man's merit, but out of a heart of grace for the sake of another, even Christ.

III. Mephibosheth Is Found (vv. 4, 5).

This lame man was found in the house of Machir in Lodebar. This strikingly illustrates the sinner's condition. The sinner is utterly unable to walk uprightly before the Lord. Mephibosheth was in the house of Machir, which means "sold." This is exactly the sinner's condition--sold into sin and Satan. Lodebar means "no pasture." This, too, suggests the sinner's condition of soul which nothing can satisfy but God. The sinner maimed and enslaved by sin has an "aching void" which only God and his grace can satisfy.

IV. Mephibosheth's Sense of Unworthiness (vv. 6-8).

When he was brought into the presence of the king he reverently fell upon his face. Every sinner in the presence of God feels unworthy of his saving grace.

V. David Restores to Mephibosheth the Forfeited Estate of His Father (vv. 9-10).

He not only restored this estate, but provided a means of tillage. God not only receives us into his family as children and restores to us the estate forfeited by Adam, but provides for its culture and development.

VI. Mephibosheth at the King's Table (vv. 11-13).

This act of kindness on the part of David was done out of the sincerity of his heart. This illustrates God's kindness to us in Christ.

Find Good in Evil.

Train yourself to find the good in what seems evil, to make of disaster an opportunity for your courage, to master suffering by patience to learn from sorrow sympathy.--G. S. Merriam.

Rooted in Christ.

As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him; rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith as ye have been taught abounding therein with thanksgiving.--Colossians 2:6 and 7.

August Economy Sale

AUGUST 11th. to 30th.

A Word Concerning Sales

There are Sales and Real Sales many are the reasons which influence a merchant to "put on" a Sale. Sometimes there are accumulations of old goods which must be moved at any old price.

Sometimes financial conditions are such that more cash must be obtained at once.

Sometimes business is quiet and needs stimulating and sometimes a Sale is inaugurated merely for advertising purposes.

This August Sale of ours is really for none of these reasons, but is merely following out our Policy established at the time of our purchase of this Business. We believe that by sharing our Profits on our regular, seasonable merchandise by means of frequent Sales, we can best establish a feeling of Good-Will. Mrs. C. P. Fletcher Wins Prize
For Naming Theatre.

In the recent contest to select a name for the new theatre which is rapidly near completion, Mrs. C. P. Fletcher had the honor of being awarded the ten dollars in gold by a committee composed of the following men, John Minnich, John P. Cuppett and John R. Dull. Out of the fifty one letters received, eleven suggested the name RICHELIEU. Mrs. Fletcher's letter being first was awarded the prize according to the rules of the contest. Mrs. Fletcher's letter, which follows was received last Friday, July 23rd at 9 o'clock A. M.

Bedford, Pa., July 23, 1920
Mr. John Dull,
Bedford, Pa.

Dear Sir:

I would suggest that the new theatre be named the "RICHELIEU" after a noted actor of that name. This is more appropriate than some of the names given to theatres in cities such as Strand, Majestic, etc. This name Richelieu is entirely original, would sound good, make an attractive electric sign and would also serve as a monument to Mr. Richelieu who has made it possible for a modern Play house for Bedford.

Yours truly,
Mrs. C. P. Fletcher.

AMERICAN IDEALS.

"Americans of the future will be the Americans evolved from the foreign born of today," is the belief of Dr. Albert Shiels, who for many years was connected with the public schools of New York city in the department of educational research and the evening schools, and who has more recently been superintendent of the public schools of Los Angeles. But instead of attacking American women as slackers, remarks the New York Evening Sun, Doctor Shiels believes we should turn toward efforts to make good Americans of the large number of foreign-born children already in America and those which are to be born in families of immigrants. "Statistics show that the birth rate advantage is all on the side of the foreign born," says Doctor Shiels, who is at present in New York assisting with the preparation for the national immigration conference in this city. "This fact should not startle us. Not any of us can trace our ancestry back far enough to be boastful about it at the expense of the man who came over yesterday. If the so-called American stock represents some ideal or tradition that is worth preserving--and no one can question the fact that it does--then we should avail ourselves of every opportunity to implant these ideals in the hearts and minds of the foreign born."

There are still thousands upon thousands of acres of land in the United States that are good for no other purpose than to grow trees. Exact study is now being made by the forestry departments of the United States and the various states for the purpose of clearing and replanting the vast acreage with trees. It takes years to reforest land, and we should begin now to serve the future generations. There should be an organization in the United States composed of lovers of trees and nature. This organization should have for its purposes the protection of the forests that still remain and for the production of new ones. It should, through the public press and the schools, carry on a plan of educating the public in the beauties and uses of forests. To put man in touch with nature makes him a better citizen.

Sig. Marconi says that it is Mars that is trying to signal to us, while Prof. Abbot, astronomer of the Smithsonian Institution, declares that the mysterious manifestations are from Venus. Under the circumstances there doesn't seem anything to do but give the scientists a spyglass or a ouija board apiece and let them fight it out. A signed message from Mars or an autographed call from the lady at central on Venus would be welcomed as evidence, but in the absence of either it might be wise to withhold judgment. Personally, we would rather make a date with Venus than Mars, says Los Angeles Times. It seems to suggest more warmth and sociability; but at the same time if Mars really has a communication to make we are willing to hold the wire. Mars can do nothing to scare us any more.

Get Wise

Ohio, "the Mother of Presidents", ought to bear twins this time.

Ohio is the place to locate if you want to run for President or Vice President. It breeds them out there.

It is the consensus of opinion that Debbs will follow Harding's plan and conduct a front porch campaign. Neither candidate cares to have the common people see him.

When a girl alludes to a man as an idiot she is in love with him and she is afraid to tell it.

Twins should never pray presents at the same time. God may not be able to tell them apart and bring the wrong present to the wrong twin.

Just make your wife believe you understand even when you know you don't.

Don't marry a man in order to keep some other woman from marrying him. It's a long time to serve a revenge.

If you wish to find out how far back your pedigree runs just rob a bank and they may trace you back to Italy or Germany, or New York or Chicago.

Women Have Adopted New Weapon
Old Broomstick No Good.

At Christiansa, Lancaster County, Wm. Todd, a 6-footer, testified before an alderman that his wife Clara a mere slip of a woman, attacked him while he was milking a cow, knocked him from the stool, used the stool as a club and chased him from the barn with a plow point.

Dave Knaub, Sunday reported having seen some kind of strange looking animals in the woods near New Baltimore late Saturday night. This is the first one Dave has seen since the country went dry. However, it seemed to have pretty much the same effect on him--so much so that several interested parties in New Baltimore have determined to make a searching investigation of the matter at the earliest possible moment to see if they can locate it.

Datus Perkins, in looking over some statistics finds that it requires about two and a half dollars worth of feed for a rat each year. Recently one or more rats ate a nice roll of five and ten dollar bills belonging to the Horse Doctor. Dete thinks that if rats have chosen this diet statisticians will have to get busy in a hurry or their figures are going to be all wrong.

The Editor thinks his wife gets a lot of real pleasure out of quarreling at him.

A woman over near Madley has sued the railroad company for several thousand dollars for running its train over her husband and killing him. A neighbor says he is sure she would have let him go at a dime a year or so ago.

Alexander Mosely is proud of a new pair of trousers he discovered and bought while in Bedford a few days ago. They are the good old fashioned kind which have the pockets in front instead of on the sides, and, too, he says he bought them real cheap.

Bill Hellwanger's dream that he was bathing in a lake of beer one hot night recently is interpreted as a bad omen by the Store Room Prognosticator it was an awfully good dream any way. The only bad feature of it is that he does not remember drinking any of the beer, though he thinks he must have as he never knew himself to refuse. Tim Billings thinks it could have been Bevo or some of the other latter day foollers.

"None But The Norwalk"

In Portland, Maine, in San Francisco; in New Orleans, in Portland, Oregon; and in hundreds of cities and towns between, the undertakers use the Norwalk Vault. All over the United States it is the standard burial vault. "None But the Norwalk" is the motto of the really good undertaker everywhere.

Allentown, Pa.—According to Robert H. Norgang, marriage license clerk of Lehigh county, leap year is Cupid's best booster. Not only has he issued $36 marriage licenses this year to date, 132 more than for the same period last year, but he says that invariably the bride-to-be is the one who asks for the license, indicating that it was she who popped the question.

Erie.—One young woman was killed instantly and three other persons were injured when the automobile in which they were riding overturned at a sharp curve on the Ridge road, near North Grand, twenty miles west of here. Miss Myrna McKean, aged 18, is dead, while the injured are Miss Gladys Moore, aged 19; Miss Ruth Jackson, aged 20, and Russell Johnson, owner and driver of the car.

Harrisburg.—Pen G. Lyman, registrar of the state automobile division, said applications for the half-year licenses would not be granted until August 1, under the act of 1919. Hereafter they have been granted as of July 1. Applications will not be received until a week or ten days before the date when the reduced fee becomes in effect.

Altoona, Pa.—While J. E. Peters, Texas street jack, was painting the flange on the roof of the Emerson school building, Coroner Chester C. Rothrock and Undertaker Vincent L. Stevens sat on a porch nearby watching him.

Sharon, Pa.—Diving into the Shenango river near Sharpsville, Ray Stafford, aged twelve years, encountered the body of a man who later proved to be Matt Kennedy, aged sixty years. About the man's head a large stone had been tied. In one of his pockets was found a note, signed "Matt Kennedy," and reading: "This day he has to take unto himself just the same as the Only Begotten did. I have to die in my father's blood. It is to be finished just the same."

Strasburg, Pa.—Jay Barley, an employee of the Strasburg Electric company, is recovering from a shock of 2200 volts, which threw him from a pole across the row of wires and held him there until after the current was turned off. He was severely burned.

McKeesport.—The census bureau reports McKeesport's population as 45,975, an increase of 3281, or 7.7 per cent.

Dunbar.—An overheated electric iron left on the porch without being disconnected set fire to the home of Fred Karnes and the family barely escaped in their night clothes.

Ashland.—William Renner, health officer of this town, committed suicide by shooting.

Millsville.—With his back broken in four places by a fall from a cherry tree, Carol McCreary, 30 years old, lives.

Scranton, Pa.—Two carpenters were killed and another was seriously injured when the tower of Marine Breaker, No. 2, of the Hudson Coal company, at North Scranton, collapsed. They were hurled more than 100 feet to the ground. Austin Frear and Vincent Dande were killed, while William Thomas is in a hospital here with a broken back, not expected to live.

Greensburg.—Raiders rampant in a flock of sheep was discovered by Dr. George W. Johnson, veterinarian, of New Kensington, when he inspected a flock owned by John N. Shirely, of Nantassus rural route. Several have died and a number have been killed since the first symptoms of the dreaded disease were noticed.

Tamaqua.—Held up by a masked highwayman Harry Billing, a visitor from Philadelphia was robbed of $11.

Harrisburg.—A large percentage of cattle feed sold in this state at $22 a ton was found to be cotton seed hulls and the protein or valuable content to be only about 25 per cent by state chemists in making analysis of samples taken recently. Numerous samples have been taken which show a wide variation in protein and price.

Lancaster.—The Salvation Army "doughnut girl" will have better sailing for the coming year, as the result of the drive made for her here the last ten days. Already $15,000 of the $18,000 has been raised toward completing and maintaining the new army home on South Queen street.

Pottstown.—Governor Spruhl, while driving from Harrisburg to his home at Chester, in an automobile, was halted at Pottstown by state police, who have been halting every auto after midnight, in the campaign against motor thieves. State police, on a motorcycle, overhauled the governor's machine and when the chauffeur halted the car on the pike outside of Pottstown, the governor stuck his head out, thinking at first he had been held up by highwaymen. The state police demanded that he prove his identity, and when this was done the machine was allowed to proceed toward Chester. The governor shook hands with the troopers and praised them for their vigilance.

Scranton.—Charged with having shipped more than 100 gallons of whisky to New York state in trunks, Frank Campbell was arrested by government agents. In his home was found 20 gallons of whisky, while at the D. L. & W. station six trunks, each containing 15 gallons of liquor, and said to have been consigned to a Buffalo dealer by Campbell, were confiscated. Three other raids were also made here by the government netting 200 gallons of booze in all. Campbell's son, a former army aviator, was drowned at Atlantic City recently when his airplane fell.

Connellsville.—With a bumper crop of wild grapes, preparations are being made to harvest them and distill them into home-made wine. Reports from Indian Head are that farmers are pruning and spraying the wild grapevines, thus greatly increasing the crop.

Easton.—Mrs. Sue Foster, 25 years old; her 3-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, and her mother, Mrs. Jacob Washburn, aged 47, were perhaps fatally burned when a pan of kerosene exploded, setting fire to their clothing, as well as to their home. The pan had been placed on a gas stove by Mrs. Foster, who was attempting to take the coloring out of a garment, when the oil boiled over and exploded. Neighbors came to their aid and after smothering the flames took the injured ones to the Easton hospital. The home was damaged to the extent of $500.

Reading.—Local breweries are short of employees. It was stated at the meeting of the Brewery Workers' Union, not due to any strike, but because men are seeking other employment, believing that the life of most breweries is limited.

Brownsville.—Struck by an automobile as he rushed across the National pike near his home at Briar Hill, William Fleming, 11, was so badly injured that he died within a few hours in the Brownsville General Hospital. The car was driven by Russell Trader, of Fairbance.

Sharon.—Sixty automobilists were arrested, charged with violating the state law by using cut-outs. Less than one-third the number pleaded guilty. They were fined $10 and costs each. The others will be given trials. Among those arrested were residents of Ohio.

Altoona.—While but one house building permit was issued here in June twenty-five permits for garages were issued.

Harrisburg.—Twenty-four veterans of overseas service, enlisted in the state police, have been sent to the Newville training school.
